HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS?

South Africa.

Beaded wire figurines is a popular African art form. This is the first time that I see a fancy pigeon done in this genre. How do you like this Brunner Pouter? It was commissioned by the new local Brunner Club. The artist worked off the standard drawings only.

I'm trying to find out who created this, and if he will do other breeds.

We will keep you informed.

LATEST UPDATE
on the SPECIAL PROJECT AT THE 2008 AVICORNI SHOW

At the AVICORNI Show 19 – 21 December 2008 in Utrecht there will be a special international manifestation about

of all worldwide known utility chicken breeds

A special space will be allocated to house the Show of the Utility Cocks and Cockerels. Of course there will be a competition, but the judging is done in a different way, namely mainly for their utility qualities; minor faults in i.e. comb or colour/marking will be ignored. The Judges will be appointed by the several international breed clubs, of which many have already promised to participate.

We are very pleased to inform you that various prizes have already been donated, such as: 5 kg GARVO quality food special for cocks, for every best of breed; an ancient poultry book by Van Gink; plaquettes from the Dutch Poultry Union; book 'Terra Madre'; rosettes, and prize money. When received in time, your donated prizes will be published in the programme, or else later in the catalogue.

The event will be completed with some surprising extras, such as an exhibition of paintings of all sorts of cocks. Saturday, various products are to taste, all related to chicken meat. Sunday no 'tasting' but you can collect the recipes. Friday (December 19th) is judging day, which will also be open to the public. The penning fee is only 2,50 euro per cock(ere).

GOOD NEWS FROM SPAIN - A.P.A.R.I.V

The committee of A.P.A.R.I.V are happy to tell you that we have been able to negotiate the extension of our contract for the land where the refuge is situated, to 2014, at a cost of 1,000€ per annum.

This means that we can now make some plans to improve the situation of our dogs there. Our priority is to try and find a solution to the lack of water, the volunteers have to carry 100 liters every day in plastic bottles.

Corrugated roofing is also important as this provides shelter from the rain in winter and shade from the sun in summer.

We need more gravel for the runs and we want to concrete the floors of the kiosks where the dogs sleep.

All this needs money, and if any of you would care to hold a fund raising event, B.B.Q., cheese 'n' wine party, raffle, scrabble, fun run, sponsored walk, or bungee jump!!

Please let us know, and if you have, or know somebody who has corrugated sheets or metal posts, and no longer need them, we would be very happy to have them.

Here 's hoping we can make the next 6 years a happy and fruitful one, and we can help a lot of stray animals. I am sure with your help we will do it.

Press release NBvH (Dutch Hobby and Smallholders Association) 28 September 2008

Using a chip instead of an ear tag, 'Europe' says yes! NBvH pleased about breakthrough.

Sheep and goats born after 30 December 2009 need no longer be double tagged, one ear tag will do. The other tag may be replaced by a 'chip', an injectable transponder. New EU ruling now allows a chip, as long as the chipped sheep and goats stay within the national borders.

"A breakthrough, but we're not there yet", says Christine Bijl of the Dutch Hobby and Smallholders' Association (NBvH). Because of the required reading distance of the injectable transponder, the 'chip' will as yet have to be considerably larger than the chip we use for dogs, cats and horses.

During the past 5 years Bijl has lobbied in The Hague and in Brussels to get the chip accepted for sheep and goats. "At last Brussels has given green light for the injectables. And though one ear tag is still a must, we have won 50 %", she says after reading the recently published EU Regulation (EC No 933/2008).

For years the NBvH has advocated zealously to get an animal friendly and fraud proof identification for sheep and goats. The chip is the best option, says Bijl. She expects the new Regulation will be welcomed especially by holders who do not export their animals. The NBvH will continue to advocate no ear tags at all for the animals, when just the chip will do.

Bijl: "We will try to get the minister to approve the animals to be ear tagged only when leaving the premises, if they are 'chipped'."

Christine Bijl, secretary NBvH
